

Balance and Coordination Sessions

Most work activities require good balance and coordination. As workers age or are less active, they lose some of their previous skills and trips or falling may become a serious problem. These systems can be trained at all levels specific to your employee's needs.