

Worksite and Ergonomic Assessments:

Identify and remove conditions in a workplace that may be interfering with work performance when a worker is experiencing an injury or illness, or to prevent an injury and increase productivity. Accessibility, work methods, workplace design and ergonomics, productivity demands, equipment in use, and the worker's abilities and limitations are some of the factors that are considered.

Recommendations for equipment, stretches and/or education can be made.